Professional Regulation oversees the apprenticeships, licensure, testing, registration and discipline of more than 30,000 individuals in 65 trade occupations. This office also oversees the administrative and regulatory functions of eight Licensing Boards whose members represent the various professions.

All trades must complete an apprenticeship. Apprenticeships can last from one to five years (occupation-dependent). During this time, apprentices work and learn under the direction of experienced journey persons. Over time, apprentices are provided the diversity and complexity of training that leads to becoming highly skilled in their chosen occupations.

Our purpose is to examine and license all applicants with the Board of Examiners of Electricians, Board of Hoisting Engineers, Mechanical Board, Board of Examiners of Plumbers, and Board of Examination and Licensing of Telecommunication System Contractors and Technicians.

The division administers examinations to electricians, hoisting engineers, pipefitters, refrigeration technicians, fire protection sprinkler fitters, sheet metal workers, plumbers and telecommunication system contractors and installers. Examinations are administered twice monthly.
